Tulsa Partners, Inc. is a nonprofit organization that works through public-private partnerships to create disaster-resistant, sustainable communities. It has three core programs: the Disaster-Resistant Business Council (DRBC), the Language & Culture Bank, and the Millennium Center for Green and Safe Living.

The DRBC is a public-private partnership facilitating disaster resistant businesses, communities and organizations through the use of the IBHS "Open for Business"® program. The DRBC is led by volunteer stakeholders from local, state and national organizations representing the public, private and nonprofit sectors.
